

Welcome to the Climate Connections Trail

Kamloops is located on Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc territory, situated within the unceded ancestral lands of the Secwépemc Nation. As we face the challenges of the climate crisis together, we have opportunities to learn from traditional knowledge to better understand our local ecosystems and foster sustainable ways of living that have long been practised on these lands—Secwépemculew.

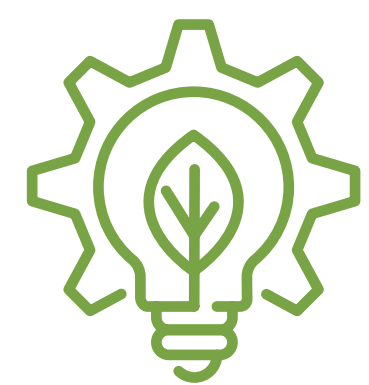

Along this 1.8 km, accessible loop trail, learn how you can connect with and protect the environment and how your choices matter. You are invited to:

EXPLORE climate change, local ecosystems, and Secwépemc traditional knowledge.

REFLECT on your own connections to the natural world and with the themes of the trail signs.

ACT using solutions for lighter living. While the biggest changes are often systemic, collective individual action is also impactful and empowering!

Actions you can take today or prepare for are graded:

- Beginner: learning more and changing everyday habits.
- Intermediate: more effort and potential investment.
- ◆ Advanced: greater planning and investments for substantial results.
